

SYSTEM OF A CLOWN

Mass transit journal

“I can do anything!”

Tired of watching people getting off to a “bad start” or “on the wrong foot,” going through the “wrong door” or that paranoia-racked scanning their day’s horoscope.

&, yes, folks, money is as external as a 3rd eye or a second head. You know it’s there, but you can’t mention it except by talking around it.

& you might think: “The corrupt madness of the individual!” when you spot me, salt & pepper goatee full of last week’s White Castle leavings & you are partially right.

My misguided psychogeography of the vacant cement that lines Castleton Avenue leaves me at the mercy of a dream of stinking feet encased in flip-flop

POETRY MAKES

FINE DISTINCTIONS
ABOUT THINGS THAT DON’T MATTER

YOSSUF LECYZZKI

1/14/06, 3:45pm, waiting for the #44 to the St. George ferry terminal “Pyramid”: M.J.Q. (iPod) on the corner of Castleton & Bemont lovely Presbyterian Church with Tiffany-era stained glass salvaged from nearby Sailor's Snug Harbor

How can I write bedeviled by truants???

1/17, 2:44pm via New Jersey Transit Raritan Valley Line (off-peak fare in effect)

Here on the Raritan Valley Line stopping for passengers in the perfect suburb of Fanwood with me on board on the way down to meet my brother to move my father from assisted living to next door's nursing home.

I open Thoreau's 1851 Journal:

“The Mileania Scanden
 & the button bush & the pickerel weed

are sere & flat with frost.

as the train pulls into the Netherwood station.

1/18, 8:00am –On the S46 (towards West New Brighton) bus slogs up to the Victory Boulevard stop meat pies of all nations in a still-gated store window columns of industrial rain on a Van Duzer Street awning my butchered hesitations, my inhibited fantasies of power as the bus climbs uphill

I look back see oil tankers parked in the Narrows waiting for the new money mantra called:

"spike in the gas pumps"

1/19, 4:15pm, On the S46—towards the Ferry Terminal

Moody bunch, perhaps actual splinters of consensus occupy the seats

Art Blakey in my headset rejecting ideal meaning in favor of his particular line of inquiry:
"The Beat."

1/21, 6:30pm, On the #23 to Hoboken Terminal

I'm the only passenger on a "limited service" bus careening along Boulevard East.
Manhattan's cubic zirconium nightscape as always on my left as I pass by childhood's old preciencts.

"Hey! Make sure you throw that out!"
says the driver pointing at my White Castle sack I shall attend to civility and to "the ecology" but leave the NY POST on the seat for another rider who might also be surprised to learn of Osama Bin Laden's love of feta cheese.

1/23, 9:12pm, Leaving the Hoboken PATH station

Moon's swollen cheeks pinned above Citicorp Tower

1/23, 8:45am—At the Bay Street bus shelter, waiting for the S78 to Totenville.

Man: You know when the collection plate gets heavy at our church?

Woman: At Xmas?

M: Nah! When Stevie Wonder is in the house when he's visiting his daughter - you know, the one he wrote "Isn't she lovely" for. When he gets up and sings a gospel song, everyone throws in tens and twenties in the plate!"

W: How much do you throw in?

M: Same old two dollars I do every Sunday! Hell, he ain't singing any of his hits.

(Long Pause)

W: How many kids does Stevie Wonder have?

M: Lots! At least 7 from 4 different women. For a blindman he sure finds that hole all right!

1/23, 6:20pm M8 Crosstown—9th Street, 4th Avenue to 6th Avenue PATH

Weighed down by havarti board the cross town bus full of people talking & who all seem to know each other

“Free-lancing is so brutal now!”

That tenacity of hardy old school East Villagers.
The lurching bus prompts the woman next to me to tell me: “New driver, see how he drives?”
---- my sister mass transit connoisseur.

Bus stop right at PATH Station (perfect interface) & just as I put my Quik-Card in the fare collector the Hoboken train arrives (!) A whole different class of folks down here grimly playing with their serious toys –Black Berries, cellphone pixels, or just lopping-out failed relations from their PDAs

& what’s with the woman whose head is buried deep in her hands....
Depressed?? Tired??
Time to clock out as social worker & walk out onto Hudson Place

1/23, 8:43am– S44 @ Bement & Castleton

I decide to debark through the back exit then turn right for coffee at Dick's Deli.

Ring signal bell swing left making my way back.

But there's a guy puking into the rear exit stairwell (looks like his morning coffee) a hoodie version of a Roman gargoyle fountain.

Quickly, I swing about & head up to the front door knowing I'll be seeing puke Angel Falls in my head all morning.

2/1, 7:18am – Fulton Street Lexington Avenue Line Station

“A great many injuries in the Berlin subway result from young people riding on the subway cars for sport.

In Hong Kong,
some older people use the subway to commit some sort of ritual suicide.

They would get dressed up in their traditional clothing & step in front of a train said one researcher.

As a result of the study, Hong Kong authorities educate transit workers to watch for elderly people who are dressed up and acting strangely.

In New York, 8 out of every ten victims injured by a subway car are men.”

(today's NY Times)

2/23, 8:25am – Ferryboat Barberi to Whitehall Terminal (passing Robbins Reef Light)

Yesterday, a 100-pound woman ate 26 grilled cheese sandwiches in ten minutes winning the World's Grilled Cheese Eating Championship.

Sonya Thompson won the $8,000 prize at the Times Square Planet Hollywood but stated she was disappointed in her performance:

“I Could Have Done Better!”

On the competitive eating circuit, she's dubbed Black Widow because the petite teen has defeated so many of the morbidly obese men who typically dominate such contests.

Her world eating records include:

46 dozen oysters in ten minutes

11 lbs. of cheesecake in 9 minutes

48 chicken tacos in 11 minutes

37 hot dogs (including buns) in 12 minutes & 56 hamburgers in 8 minutes.

Ms. Thomas passed up the additional prize of a night at the nearby "W" Hotel as she had to catch a train to make her shift at a Burger King in her hometown of Alexandria, VA

Source: Staten Island Advance

2/4, 5:12 pm "A" Train -42nd Street to Chambers Street

Last day of use on my 30-Day "Unlimited" Metro Card

I'd feel sad but believing in objects is deranged

here underneath Dick Cheney's America where privacy has become illegible

2/4, 6:42pm WTC Terminal – PATH to NWK small anxiety of waiting for a train to depart (train leaves station)

A zoetrope on the Jersey-bound side just before Exchange Place hawks dream cars

but not to worry comrade, its not the fetish object but the junk electric Lascaux that hypnotizes me.

2/4, 8:35pm – Downtown Loop shuttle van NJPAC to NWK Penn Station (I'm the only passenger)

Driver: Whom did you see?
Passenger: A roots band from Quebec.

D: Where's that?
P: Canada.

D: Do they have Eskimos there?

P: They do in Canada, but you have to go to the Yukon or Nunavut.

(Silence as we drive down Raymond Blvd. towards Penn Station)

D: I always wanted to see how the Eskimos lived.

2/4, 8:45pm, PATH—NWK to WTC (@ the Harrison Station)

Guy gets on sits next to me & opens up a paperback copy of OVERCOMING POVERTY.

Sneak a peek: Chapter 1:

"You have to be in the right game!"

Out the windows a long line of black CSX tankers move slowly through the freight yard in the winter rain.

2/5, 2:00pm #165 Westwood to Hackensack (NJ)

(How I got here):

bus. (#S46 to St. George Terminal) subway. (#1 to Chamber Street Station switch to #3 Express to Times sq.) back on a bus (see entry heading)

AM I TRAVELLING TOO MUCH AND NOT REALLY GETTING ANYWHERE??

MAIN STREET, HACKENSACK

You can no longer tell the pigeons from the off-river breeze. This twilight factory, streets as convents, with one light bulb in an upstairs office fracturing the black Ad Rheinhardt tableau and though I can recognize the neighborhood this Hackensack in Reagan's final year, I can't be the t-shirt existentialist I once was graphing the decline of the empty urban pocket.

The courthouse dome's gold glow mimics Washington's skull.
The Woolworth is universal F.W. Woolworth.
And that's a submarine, the S.S. Ling, moored like a paperweight between the newsprint plant and the Court Street Bridge.

This all goes into a collective call towards charged silence that's only jalopies drifting through amber signals and buses idling against the Transfer Station platform.
A thick goodbye to old Hackensack Saturdays with farmer's swarming off up-county's Susquehanna trains – those Wortendyke Dutch & moody Paramus celery ranchers have left their progeny a vast Mall to inhabit, those lives full-formed from a violent media's left-over alphabet of Brand Name Realism.

But you do know that, underneath it all, nothing sits still, not even here on asphalt skin gnawed by sharp-toothed time. Shake pocket change to realize that oblivion seems miles yet seconds from the security gates binding the chilled storefronts.

Each curb a sinking world, each cataract streetlamp brings up small practical dreams that illuminates them quickly.

(circa 1988)

Twenty years later and off to probate my mother's will, some signatures and a slap of official ink

"Is Prozy's Army & Navy open?"

-- Nope.

"What about Womrath's Books?"

-- Gone for years

"How about White Manna?"

--Some people say Hackensack should shut down if "the Manna" closes

(so says the probate clerk as she takes my signature) then off I go down the 3pm desert of Main Street, Hackensack, old market town from Bergen County's past life of celery ranchers turtle wranglers & dairymen

So here I am in this littlest of greasy spoons, munching two Manna Burgers & an OK coffee

O hokey poets of New Jersey!

-- when you write again of your coldwater origins & obsess about the overwhelming chill & boredom of death

I will try to counteract your mewling melodramas of the singular self by revealing that the secret to life is White Manna's potato flour hamburger rolls the color of Cheetos ---which contrasts nicely with that oniony blotch of Meat Patty X.

Check, please!

Now a last glance at the sluggish Hackensack River before heading off to a State Street bus stop walking as if I've stepped in dogshit, passing functional office buildings neither sad or authentic.

I love the 165 Westwood's plunge across the Hackensack Meadows along the Bergen Turnpike. Its an old toll road that served as the mainstem for Bergen County's farmers bringing their produce to Manhattan markets. The road once terminated in Hoboken as the "Hackensack Plank Road" which still exists in Weehawken (sans planks) as the local's back road into the Lincoln Tunnel. When the 165 crosses the Hackensack at Little Ferry's Rt. 46 Bridge you can still see "Tracey's Nine Mile House" where Bergen Turnpike once crossed the river via a wooden drawbridge. Tracey's is built within an old stagecoach stop, it being "Nine Miles" from the waterfront of Lower Manhattan.

2/7, 3:45pm, at the bus stop, Bement & Castleton Guy: What was that for lunch?

Girl: Fake-ass cold cuts.

Guy: ...damm!!

2/20, 8:00am, Ferryboat Molinaro to Saint George Terminal

Near the middle of the Upper Harbor a poem of Claude McKay booms from the boat's sporadic sound installation.

It's some actor declaiming in a well-bottom voice like crackhead James Earl Jones & quite unlike McKay's actual light Caribbean lilt

Man on the opposite end of the upper deck shouts: SHUT THE FUCK UP! in the general directions of the speakers on this, the eve before the opening of the Scottish salmon fishing season.

2/25, 4:05pm, on the S46 to the ferry.

(A woman gets on. She looks at least 25)

Driver: HEY! That's a student pass!

Woman: SO??!!!

D: You don't look like no student!

W: I'm in school!

D: What are you – Super Senior?

3/2 – 5:30pm, NJT 126 going down Washington Street (late winter snowstorm)

MAGIC MASS TRANSIT MOMENT!!

#44 to ferry

& just in time for 4:10 terminal doors closing as I dash through get off ferry

& down into South Ferry Station the #1 just pulling in, then departing immediately .

Switch at Chambers Street

The #2 waiting for the local (!)

Express to Penn Station

Rush to deposit hefty gift check at the still-open Dreyfus bank

Then down corridor to the 8th Avenue Station The “E” train just pulling in (!)

44 seconds, arrive at 42nd Street, the “Port Authority” buy a carnet of bus tickets (& no problem with vending machine, either) upstairs to Platform

204 (escalator working)

the #126 waiting leaving 30 seconds

after I board

& add to this:

No tunnel traffic (in snow even)

&

No Hoboken street traffic

---- rare, rare like planets in alignment

So rare that you have to write it down

even at the risk of boring/perplexing the car-driving potential readership.

3/7, 5:50, waiting at the M8 busstop, 2nd Avenue and 9th Street (with takeout Ukranian food from the Vesalka in a shopping bag)

“HEY LOOK!”

said a voice to no one in particular

“IT’S

ADAM SANDLER

ON A MOTORCYCLE!”

it sure is

... & with a movie crew following right behind him

3/13, 10:48pm, on the #1 downtown, at the 59th Street Columbus Circle Station

(for the Yids)

erev (eve of) Purim fresh back from hipster Purim Spiel led by writers from the Daily Show
-- Shushan TV—

Now its old school Judaism's turn earnest young Lubavitch men lug boxes of hamantaschen & a Scroll of Esther off this crowded car and up into the streets of this shiny imperial city

3/16, on board the 7:30AM Ferryboat Barberi

(for the Gentiles/Catholic Division) transit gods in confluence made this early boat with a little hustle & seconds to go.

catching breath/settling in grab the freebie Metro, news aimed for the brain of the neo-blank generation hmm, Sat Patrick's day tomorrow, FRIDAY AND LENT (!)

NO bangers?
NO bad mouth-feel corned beef?!
Not to worry
....the Catholic Church is granting dispensation for New York City

(No mention of the outlying districts, though)

Flash memory of Kevin O'Reilly:

"Hey, Joel! Waddaya call an Irish homosexual?"

" ?????? "

" A man who prefers women to drinking!"

3/10, 3:50pm, S46 @ Bement & Castleton get on the bus with plenty of time to catch the 4:10pm Ferry

& is that woman in Rosa Parks car coat standing up, reciting poetry (??)

Nope, she is preaching & the tolerant bus driver lets her keep it up all along undulating Castleton Ave onto mainstem Victory Boulevard & into St. George Terminal.

The mostly black passengers take it in stride telling the woman “God Bless You”
as they debark.

She calls back: “have a blessed day!”

3/10, 5:10pm, R Train, near Union Square Station

A trio of buskers enter my car, start singing:

“Down By The Riverside!”

(& do I detect a trend of sorts?)

I squeeze to the left as they busk
the car, accapella mixing with the Dolphy playlist on my i-Pod.

3/11, 6:24pm, @ the 14th Street Station platform (uptown), 6th Avenue IND

(a young woman is talking to a young man, they seem to be a couple)

“You now feel how I feel sometimes

-- HOW IS IT??”

3/26, 12:18pm, Raritan Valley Line, Hoboken to Bridgewater the 17 minute sprint across the Meadows devolved to a halfhour of crawl and stall until the train finally shuffles into Newark

“What’s up with the train?”

“Blame Amtrak”

sez the conductor “They run these tracks!”

I start up an amiable conversation with a woman wearing a Ringling Brothers jacket

“Yes, I am in the circus!”

She manages pyrotechnics & takes clear pride in her job “I know every fire marshall in every North American city”

I tell her my brother is a weekend kids’ party clown.

“Oh, we closed down our clown college a few years ago.”

“Why,” I inquire.

“We were producing too many clowns for the needs of this economy.”

(No bigger threat to bourgeoisie democracy than the unemployed clown

--- Antonio Gramsci)

Circus woman is getting off at Bridgewater, too -- visiting a younger sister who is part of the rival but smaller potatoes Big Apple Circus
now decamped in tents right outside the minor league park that abuts this station as we debark a woman approaches me up from the back of the car:

"My mother was in the circus, too!
--the Bulgarian State Circus but she defected in Chicago in 1966 & joined the Clyde Beatty Circus as a lion tamer!"

Man! Circus People!

3/21, 8:26am, S46 St. George to Bemont Ave.

Ensnorced in my favorite seat, that first single seat (= more leg room) am dragged from the normal drowse by the driver yelling to the back rows:

"HEY, YOU FORGOT TO PAY!"

& up surges an angry, cursing black guy

"I WAS JUST GETTING CHANGE, MOTHERFUCKER!"

& etc, etc, etc,

& so over the top a rant realize this is a standard bus fare scam & recognize that fuming, volatile response from supermarket days when we'd catch some blatant five-fingered discounter.

Fuming guy goes back to his seat sputtering & cursing. But departure time has passed & here we are, still at the platform -- the driver won't leave until he gets his fare!

(It's a showdown of sorts.)

Then a plot twist....

A sharp-dressed business type black guy gets up and pays fuming, scam guy's fare

.....except this enrages scam guy even more!

“YOU GOAT-EATING, CURRY-LAPPING INDIAN MOTHERFUCKER!” he screams (& screams) I didn't notice the anonymous driver's ethnicity (still don't)

& I feel like one of the faceless Los Angeleno ethnics who cowed behind Sandra Bullock in “Speed”
-- I really didn't need this floor show & ... what next??

“YOU JUST WAIT!” yells scamguy as the bus finally departs & soon the S46 is full of passengers as it climbs up Victory Boulevard, mad standing room as safety net for the morning run.

3/27, 5:20, Exchange Place, Jersey City, Hudson-Bergen Light Rail Station

I always wipe my hands on the grass but not here beneath the VERY scary statute of the Katyn Forest martyrs men with pliers mingle with back office staff both equally cursing ticket machines that reject the dull new legal tender. Tonnelle Avenue bound cars empty , refill, depart while my wallet's contents get abused by the ATV's crew. Oh to be a chandler, a dowser, a finagler and boot it all & to focus on the water-moving action of woman leaving work, zillion years North River the backdrop.

3/28, 8:30am, S46, St. George to Bement Avenue

A Spanish-speaking Mormon woman works this bus

3/31, 3:55pm, S46, along Castleton Avenue to ferry

Late afternoon bus packed with Port Richmond High School kids

(& no shot at making the 4:10 boat)

I push to the back right by the rear exit door up front an argument breaks out:

“You should learn to control your kid!”

“WHO asked YOU crack head!”

*“YOU THINK I’M ON CRACK!
...well,
I used to be on Crack*

& If I WERE on CRACK NOW You wouldn’t be talking because yo’ head would be UP-MY-ASS!!

The rest of this bust-up is drowned out by high school kids egging & cheering the two women on black vs. Hispanic just like the schoolyards kids keep pushing up front hoping the TRASH talk soon goes to BLOWS

(-- & why is this particular bus route such a magnet for bad attitude---) finally the non-dust-up cools to standoff

just as this jitney makes the turn onto Victory with passengers scrambling to transfer to South Shore buses lined up at Tompkinsville's

old village green

4/1, 4:45pm, Raritan Valley Line to Penn Station, Newark

Snake Hill

& Little Snake Hill

& the Senator Frank Lautenberg Transportation Center out the window

& just a little bit further

The Great Kearney Trash Heap mellowing into a future state park ready for use in 48 years.

4/2, 9:15am, NJT 126 to PABT (at the mouth of the Lincoln Tunnel, Jersey side)

*
"It's
the Hellenic Day parade, today!"
*

blue/white floats lining up at an E-Z Pass lane.

4/3, 3:17, Metro-North, Harlem Division, GCT to North White Plains (on the way to a shiva (condolence) call)

Scottish week at Grand Central kilted lass at Inverness booth nonplussed when I tell of half-dozen trips to Pictland.

" dooyou plan ta back `gin?"
--says she cuum

& where is fierce Hugh MacDiarmid on this literature table laden with the novelistic equivalents of haggis?

Ahh, for the tough astringent presence of James Doohan,
'Scotty' of Star Trek who dispelled rumors of bad health

at his last Star Trek convention by declaring

"If I had Alzheimer's

doncha think I'd remember that?" the actor, best known for his role as the chief engineer aboard the star ship U.S.S. Enterprise died six months later of complications from that disease.

4/5, 7:16 am, NJT #181, to Hoboken Terminal bus to the PATH pulls up to my stop

two passengers
-- mother & child—kiss the driver before debarking

An Aunt?
 A godmother?
Or are they just happy to arrive safely?

At Observer Highway & Washington Street in response to a question the operator hands me news of bold service changes that will shake the very foundation of the Hudson County bus universe!!!!

As I study route maps and new bus numbers the old numb feeling overwhelms:

with whom, I wonder, can I talk to about these things ?

8.23.06
Ashfield, MA

